Hunters key to protecting Oregon's big game from Chronic Wasting Disease

There is an invisible threat to deer and elk populations here in Oregon. Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) lurks close to Oregon's borders in Idaho, Washington, and California, along with many other states and provinces.

CWD is an always fatal, incurable, infectious disease caused by a prion, or misfolded protein, that causes progressive brain damage in deer, elk, caribou and moose. Animals can be infected and spreading the disease for years before finally showing symptoms (drooling, lack of balance, wasting) and dying.

No state or country has successfully eradicated it but there are ways to help limit CWD's impact. The disease can cause declines in big game populations if it's not managed to prevent high infection rates and spread.

Early detection is the best tool against the disease – if it's found early, Oregon may be able to isolate it. This will only be possible with support from Oregon's hunters.

If you harvest a deer or elk anywhere in Oregon, please participate in testing.

Biologists will take a piece of brain tissue or lymph node from your animal's head; this won't impact taxidermy plans. There are several convenient ways to provide a sample:

- Stop at a check station on opening weekend of major hunting seasons (required if you drive by one while transporting game).
- Work with a participating taxidermist or meat processor (see list online at MyODFW.com/CWD).
- Call your local ODFW office to arrange an appointment.
- Drop head in a barrel at a participating ODFW office.
- Test results are posted online in 3-5 weeks. While there is no evidence that humans can contract CWD from eating or handling contaminated meat, the CDC advises against eating meat from infected animals.

Other regulations to protect against CWD:

- If hunting out of state, don't bring certain parts back to Oregon—nothing with spinal cord or brain tissue where prions concentrate is allowed back into Oregon. See pg. 16 of the 2026 Big Game Hunting Regulations for details.
- Do not use or possess commercial urine scent lures; the prions that cause CWD can be spread through urine, so these products have been banned.

Visit MyODFW.com/CWD or scan the QR code for information about CWD, testing locations and methods, and test results.

Ammo Sale
Bi-Mart's ammo sale has become a staple of the Central Oregon Sportsmen's Show. Gun owners have come to expect it and wait until the show to make their ammo purchase for the year. The savings are huge and so is the selection.

Boat Show
With so much water and recreational opportunities, the Central Oregon Sportsmen's Show is the ideal venue to showcase the area's best and brightest boating options. Fishing boats, wakeboard and wakesurfing boats, pontoons and more are at this year's show.

RV Show
Nowhere else east of the Cascades will you find so many RV's, side-by-side, in one place to shop, compare and buy! They're all here too. Motorhomes, travel trailers, toy haulers, fifth wheels, overland rigs and more!

Axe Throwing
You must be over 12 years old to participate and have a legal guardian accompanying you if you're under 18. They'll even provide some instruction on how to throw so you make the most of your time. We're thrilled to welcome BendAxe to the 2026 Central Oregon Sportsmen's Show.
